Gunfight on Cummins leaves one man dead

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Police and the District Attorney's office are still sorting through a May 20 shooting on Cummins Way that left one man dead, another seriously injured and five bystanders hit by bullets and shotgun. But the initial conclusion is that the resident who killed his neighbor was firing in self-defense, after the neighbor and a friend came to his home and started shooting at him with a handgun.

The incident happened just after 6 p.m. last Wednesday. It drew a massive response from area police agencies, and left the street as a crime scene into the small hours of the night.

Lt. Tod Sockman of the West Sacramento Police Department said the violence capped off a simmering neighborhood dispute. A day or two earlier, police were summoned to the scene of an assault involving two women, "but were unable to determine who was the primary aggressor and forwarded a report to the D.A.'s office."

One of those women was Yolanda Villanueva, a 2008 candidate for the city council of West Sacramento. Media reports say she had been complaining about code violations at her neighbor's house, which contributed to a feud. She could not be reached for comment yesterday by the News-Ledger.

On Wednesday, her son Joseph Villanueva, 32, and friend Ray Martinez, went across the street to the home of Michael Moniz at 1101 Cummins Way.

"We believe they fired first at the house. That's when Moniz went inside the house, got a shotgun and came back. It looks like he was standing outside the house when he fired back," said Sockman.

The two alleged attackers "definitely" fired at the house, said Sockman. Bullet holes were found in the home and shell casings were found at the scene. But when police arrived to find Villanueva killed by the shotgun blasts and Martinez seriously wounded in the head from the shotgun, there was no sign of any handgun.

"Somebody took it," said Sockman.

Moniz – who fired the shotgun – was initially arrested. But District Attorney Jeff Reisig's office later released him, judging that Moniz had been defending himself and others when he fired. Reisig also alleged that Villanueva had started the gunfight, and that both Villanueva and Martinez had "connections" to the Broderick Boys gang.

Sockman said it was true that both men had gang connections, but also true that the shooting seemed connected with a dispute between neighbors. Moniz does not have gang connections, said the lieutenant. Villanueva was released from prison three days before the shooting.

He said investigators hope to determine whether Villanueva and/or Martinez had fired guns that day.

"Everyone involved had a gunshot residue test," he said. "We should be able to determine who fired weapons and who didn't."

It could take weeks or months for lab results, though, he added.

Martinez will face arrest when his health improves if the D.A. decides to charge him, said Sockman.

Two people received minor wounds from apparent handgun shots. Three others – besides Villanueva and Martinez – were hit with shotgun pellets. Those victims included an elderly couple across the street from Moniz, who received minor injuries, and another victim who went to the hospital several hours after the shooting to have pellets removed.

An article on the impending closure of Hollywood Hardware last week contained incorrect information about the store's ownership and possibly other matters, the store's owner said last week. The News-Ledger was unable to elicit specific corrections.

Before going to press with the May 20 article, the News-Ledger had tried several times, unsuccessfully, to reach the store's owner.

Old-time post office branch threatened by budget troubles

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Will the neighborhood of Bryte get to keep its old-timey local post office?

West Sacramento's postmaster, Zubie Zubia, said she hasn't made a recommendation yet to her superiors in the postal service.

"We have two more years left on the lease," she said of the branch at 1548 Lisbon Avenue in the city's northwest. "It would save a lot of money if it were closed. It doesn't earn enough revenue to pay the cost of the (personnel) position over there."

Closing the branch would cut costs such as personnel, the lease, and utilities, she added.

West Sacramento city councilman Bill Kristoff is a retired postal manager who used to staff the Bryte post office. He hopes the branch can stay open. The city currently has other post offices in Broderick (northeast) and Merkley Avenue (central business district). There's also a regional mail sorting facility offering services on Industrial Boulevard near Enterprise Boulevard.

"I certainly hope they do not close the Bryte Post Office," said Kristoff. "I think the Bryte Post Office can be viable again. It needs adequate staffing hours and supplies. Years ago, it was a viable place. But people drive over once or twice, and find it not open, and don't come back."

Postmaster Zubia reported that the branch's current hours are weekdays, 8:30 a.m. to noon.

Kristoff described the branch as "a very small-town kind of place."

"It gives a lot of residents who live in the Bryte area someplace to go, even if it's to walk to the post office and mail a letter or buy a stamp. It's something for people to do, especially for the older folks. I realize the postal service has some real difficulties right now, and I realize people can go all the way to Broderick, but that's a long walk."

Kristoff was asked if it is appropriate to have three post offices north of the freeway but none in Southport.

"People from Southport probably use the Industrial Boulevard post office to mail packages and letters and to buy stamps," he said.

The Bryte and Broderick Community Action Group – a residents' group in the north – has started a letter-writing campaign to save the Bryte Post Office. Visit www.Bryteand Broderick.org for information.

His dream come true: visit from a garbage truck is a birthday treat

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Everybody should get what they want for their birthday, once in a while.

Maddox Garland got just what he wanted on Friday, when a refuse truck from Waste Management, Inc., pulled up outside the boy's birthday party on Barona Street in Southport.

"This was better than I expected," said Maddox's aunt, Meleasa Minton. "I've been more excited than he is all week!"

But Maddox was pretty excited. The boy has "always been interested in these vehicles and trucks. She emailed us to arrange this," said Larry Picard, a Waste Management operations manager who accompanied route driver John Woodall to the party. Picard said this was the first time he's helped bring a truck to a birthday party. The company often makes presentations at schools.

The pair presented a happy Maddox with a backpack of Waste Management goodies including a baseball hat, coloring book and water bottle. They also helped Maddox and his party guests up to the truck for a chance to sit in the right-hand driver's seat and blow the air horn.

How old was Maddox on Friday?

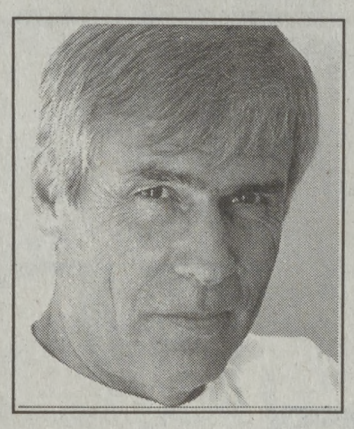
The boy held up three fingers, proudly.

"Four," he said.

MADDOX GARLAND: always fascinated by the workings of a refuse truck, had a chance to sit in one on Friday for his fourth birthday. (News-Ledger photo)

Remembering Sergeant Jim Gratton

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Another Memorial Day Weekend has come and gone and like all veterans, I spent a portion of those three days and nights reflecting back on the words "all gave some, some gave all", and in the process, was reminded of the following column, written a few years back:

A kind of remarkable thing happened to me this past Memorial Day. It actually started a week or so before Memorial Day, when out of the blue I received an email from a very nice man named Dave Fesmire, a member of the 1st Infantry Division's Darkhorse Troop that I had served with in Vietnam. He had apparently put together a website that included information on the Aero Rifle Platoon (ARPS) that had been my home from July 4, 1969 to July 5, 1970. Anyway, a friend of his had somehow got hold of an old News-Ledger column I had written ages ago memorializing Michael Lawhon, a very young soldier in my squad who had been killed in the war, and Dave wanted to invite me to check out his website and also attend a reunion the unit is holding later this summer in San Antonio, Texas. Although I really had no intention of going to a Vietnam War reunion, I did find myself reading every word of the wonderful website Dave had put together and also reluctantly dusting off the cobwebs on some very old memories. When I had finished, I decided to email Dave back, give him the phone number and snail mail address he had requested, and ask him one very big favor, and our exchange over the Internet went something like this:

"Dave, would you happen to know whatever became of Jim Gratton, who was my squad leader when I was first with the ARPS? He was the most remarkable soldier I met in Vietnam, and he was responsible on more than one occasion for helping me get safely back to the world. Do you happen to have an email address for him where I could send him a little 'thank you' note?"

"Gratton was at our last reunion and is alive and well and living just north of you up in Willits," came the surprising reply, "but he doesn't do computers. Here's his phone number and I'm sure he would be glad to hear from you."

As our exchange of emails continued, I tried to explain to Dave that I would never think of calling up Sergeant Gratton out of the blue (I wasn't even sure he would remember me), and that I had made a conscious effort over the years not to contact any of the guys I had known in the war, the goal being to keep a little promise I had made to myself when I left Vietnam to leave as many of those memories as possible there. Anyway, since Dave didn't have a mailing address for Jim, he had just kindly agreed to hand-carry a little letter from me and give it to him at the reunion, when my phone suddenly rang. Unbeknownst to me, Dave had apparently decided to just cut to the chase and on the other end of the line was a deep and matter-of-fact voice saying, "Is this Fisher?"

"This is Fisher," I answered, not having a clue who was calling.

"This is Gratton, and of course I remember you. I even remember the day you were wounded. I didn't realize you lived so close. How are you?"

It had been more than 35 years since I had heard the voice of Jim Gratton, but it was still as forceful and commanding as ever, even though I learned he was recovering from open heart surgery, the result of many years of smoking and some serious hard-living. He also told me he had recently left the Bay Area to live on 20 peaceful acres up in the redwoods and that I had an open invitation to visit him any old time I wished.

As our conversation continued, I tried to tell Jim how much I appreciated all he had done for me while I was in his squad, but he would have none of it. Like any combat soldier who has seen war for what it really is, he knows that heroes aren't made in heaven, they are simply cornered somewhere on earth, and he is genuinely modest about his actions under fire, although I know for a fact that they resulted in both the Silver Star and the Bronze Star for valor. And when I would remind him of some of the truly courageous things I personally saw him do, he would only say that we were all in it together, and that he had been too busy at the time to really remember any of it in much detail.

And it wasn't just Jim's specific actions that often saved the day for our little Aero Rifle Platoon in general and our point squad in particular, it was the way he went about doing things. He was by nature aggressive and fearless, and when an ambush or firefight would erupt, while most everyone else was trying to find cover and make sense out of all the chaos, he was fighting back. And even if he wasn't exactly sure where the enemy was, grenades were flying out of his hand and his loud rifle fire was making our attackers think twice about sticking their heads up too high. He seems to intuitively understand what most soldiers (especially young ones new to combat) don't – that a good offense is the key to a good defense, and his courage and fighting spirit would eventually rub off on most everyone else and many a day was saved because of it.

"The thing about Vietnam," recalled Jim, "was that when it was over it took a lot of us quite a few years to get our lives straightened out again. So even though I'm not much for telling war stories, I really have enjoyed going to the reunions and finding out how things turned out for everyone. And it's nice to know that everything worked out oaky for you, too."

After our conversation had finally ended, for days I was flooded by memories of Jim Gratton. But the one that remains the strongest is of him pinned down with his trusted RTO, Terry Houck (I even remember the date – July 28, 1969) behind a tiny mound of dirt, fighting for his life at the beginning of what turned out to be a deadly ambush that would take our platoon (with the help of armored reinforcements and lots of air support) all day to extricate ourselves from. I remember it so well because I had just joined the ARPS , didn't have a clue what in the world I was doing, but had been lucky enough to have been put in Jim Gratton's squad. So, as I clung to the dusty earth with enemy bullets flying all over the darn place, I could clearly see Jim up ahead of me, bare-headed because his steel pot had been shot off, giving as good as he got, and that sight alone gave me hope that everything was somehow going to be okay.

And even though I have now finally at least given it a good try, there really is no way to properly thank the person who gave you the courage to get through the scariest day of your life.

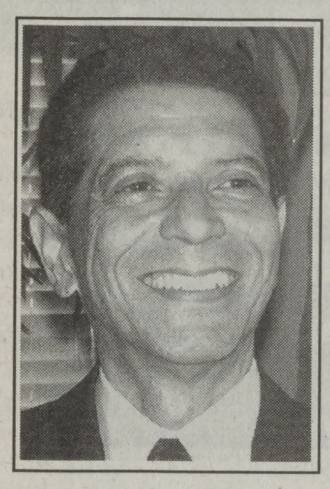
SPORTS INSIDER



By Richard Novoa

The Sacramento Kings came up a few ping pong ball short of a fiesta in the 2009 NBA draft lottery. If the Kings didn't have bad luck, they would have no luck at all. The Kings 2008/09 season ended exactly as it started – depressing.

Sacramento, with the league's worst record, was slotted first overall with a 25% chance at the top selection - yet dropped to fourth. The actual lottery took place behind closed doors, shortly before representatives from all 14 teams took the stage.

Ranked by inverse order of finish in the 2009 standings, each of the teams maintained a shot at the top three overall draft slots. The Phoenix Suns, slotted 14th, had a 0.5% shot at the top pick and just like the odds, ended up with 14th pick.

A computer randomly assigned 1,000 possible combinations to the teams, and then three were then drawn from a mix of ping-pong balls to determine the top picks. The remaining teams were placed in reverse order of finish.

On a good note, Sacramento will probably pick fourth on June 25th unless they package their top pick or picks and make a trade to pick up a potential hot shot free agent. The Kings do have three very good draft selections with No. 23 (trade with Houston) and the 31st pick in the second round.

For the third time in draft lottery history, the Los Angeles Clippers will select first, and will probably pick Oklahoma's Blake Griffin which leaves Memphis with the second pick. The Grizzlies already have a point guard in Mike Conley and should take 7-3 center Hasheem Thabeet. So the big question becomes who will the Oklahoma City Thunder select with the third pick?

Kings Korner

Maybe it's a good sign for the buzzard luck Kings because they need help everywhere on the court but their immediate need is a play making point guard that can score. Beno Udrih has proved to be only a good back-up guard for the Kings. The Kings, who really want to draft Spanish guard Ricky Rubio, are trying not to expose their poker face by not talking about the flamboyant playmaker.

Who is Ricky Rubio? He's an 18 year-old, 6 foot 4, 180 pound kid from El Masnou, Spain who plays for DKV in the European Basketball League. He has been compared to the Sun's Steve Nash, as far as play making ability, but this kid is not in the same league as Nash when it comes down to shooting skills. I still love Stephen Curry out of Davidson. Curry averaged 28 points per game but I have to admit he's not a true point guard and we have already have Kevin Martin to hog the ball.

NBA Playoffs

The Conference Finals are starting to get exciting with the Lakers and Nuggets tied at two and the Magic putting pressure on King James and his Cavs. Orlando is coming on strong with the play of Dwight Howard and Hedo Turkoglu but it's their bench players that have the City of Orlando in an uproar. Guys like Pietrus and Lee are tough while the Cavs bench has been sitting around acting like cheerleaders!

Orlando fans are off the hook and if the Magic defense can contain King James and hold him under 30 points on Tuesday night, the Magic can steal this series.

In the West, the Denver Nuggets bench players are doing the same to the Lakers with the series tied 2-2. The Nuggets are talented but I don't like the taunting from some of their players because it shows no respect and lack of maturity. These guys are celebrating victory in Denver with the series tied a two games apiece while the Lakers still have the home court advantage and of course "The Closer", Kobe Bryant. Not smart basketball!

Diamond Notes

The A's (17-25) continue to struggle but newly acquired second baseman Adam Kennedy is single handedly carrying the A's. Kennedy, who was picked up on May 8th with a trade with Tampa, is batting leadoff and has 26 hits in 15 games and batting a cool .441 with 11 RBI's.

Speaking of hitting, Giants (21-23) first baseman Travis Ishikawa finally hit a home run and it was just in time to save his demotion to Fresno. On his 100th at bat of this season Travis hit a three-run blast into McCovey Cove and add three more hits to help seal a Giants 8-2 win over Atlanta on Labor Day.

Ishikawa, who hit seven home runs in spring training, was suppose to provide the G-Men with some power in the middle of the line-up. Instead the sharp fielding first baseman is barely hitting .250 and has their GM Brain Sebean searching for a trade to bring some power the weak middle of the batting order. The Giants are dangling pitcher Mark Cain (5-1, 41K's, 2.40 ERA) out as bait to pitching hungry teams, who have a power hitting veteran to offer some pop to line-up.

Speaking of pop or lack of pop to a line-up, Boston's "Big Papi" David Ortiz has lost his mojo! The struggling first baseman is dropping fast in the Red Sox line-up because "Papi", who finally hit his first home run of the season last week, is hitting below is weight (.195).

The G-Men could use a slugger like David Ortiz but "Big Pappy" must first figure out what's ailing him. I'm no doctor and you would think the Red Sox doctors have checked out his eye site but I wonder if he's been checked for diabetes, which can affect your vision. Anyway, Cain for Ortiz would be a good trade, if "Big Pappy" regains his power stroke!

The Giants will be home this week hosting Atlanta during the week and closing out the weekend with a three game series against the Cardinals while the A's finish their series at home with Seattle before they hit the road to Texas which includes a doubleheader on Friday.

River Cats

The Cats (25-17), who are 15-9 on the season while playing at home, will finish their four game road trip in Iowa before they return to the friendly confines of Raley Field on Friday, May 29th to host the Las Vegas 51's.

If River Cats starter Vince Mazzaro (1-2, 2.66) continues his great pitching performance the right hander might find himself in an A's uniform by end of the month. Mazzaro wasn't satisfied with last week's Pacific Coast League Pitcher of the Week, because he pitched 8.0 scoreless innings against the Royals, allowing just one hit. It was Mazzaro second eight-inning, one-hit outing in three starts. He struck out six, walked only one and threw 60 strikes on 87 pitches on Friday against Omaha. I think he would look great in – Green and Gold!

Enjoy your day – see ya next week!

GUEST COMMENTARY:

Helping with job searches, transitioning to retirement: part of the scope of Yolo County H.R. dept.

By Beth Gabor, Yolo County Public Information Officer

Most days, the Yolo County Human Resources Department is very busy managing the recruitment, examination, selection and promotion of job applicants, the classification of positions and promotion of employees, employee relations and labor negotiations, benefits administration, risk management and employee training (pause for a breath) – just to name a few programs. This year they've added a few more programs to their already full plate.

Just last month, the department unveiled Job Search Central – a section on the county Web site (www.yolocounty.org) designed to provide resources and tools to assist job seekers in finding employment during these uncertain fiscal times. The primary goal of Job Search Central is to educate, prepare and directly assist Yolo County employees affected by budget cuts in obtaining paid employment. While the Web pages were developed especially for Yolo County employees at risk for layoff, the resources are posted on the county's public Web site so others impacted by job losses throughout the region can also benefit from the resources and information. As of March 20, unemployment rates in Yolo County reached 12%, well over the national average of 8.1% and the California average of 10.5%.

This month, the Human Resources Department held a workshop for employees intending to retire in the next few months. Participants in the workshop enjoyed the camaraderie of their peers while receiving information and resources on both the benefits and challenges of transitioning into retirement. Workshop speakers included former employees currently relishing in the joys of retirement, as well as various experts throughout the community.

Transitioning from the workplace into retirement can be a challenge for many; some retirees thrive while others succumb to boredom and a reduced sense of value. During the retirement workshop Dr. Leigh Harrington, clinical psychiatrist with the Yolo County Alcohol, Drug & Mental Health Department, spoke about the affects of significant life changes on an individual and offered advice on ways to continue to feel productive after retirement. Dan Rice of the Woodland Senior & Community Center invited participants to visit their new facility and to become part of the center's growing community. And, finally, the Yolo Federal Credit Union, with the assistance of financial planner Diova Gray, helped future retirees focus on financial planning for the "golden years."

Participants in the retirement workshop were also introduced to YoloLINK (www.yololink.org), an online database and directory of community resources maintained by the Yolo County Library and Department of Employment & Social Services. Besides providing resources on subjects related to housing, health care, counseling, recreation, mental health, senior services, legal matters and rehabilitation, among others, YoloLINK can also assist retirees in finding activities and educational opportunities centered on their interests.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS

The Sacramento River registered two feet six inches U. S. gauge at the Southern Pacific bridge yesterday. A report just received from the California Co-operative Crop Reporting Service U. S. Department of Agriculture, reads:

Cool weather for this time of the year prevailed throughout California during the first week of the past fortnight, but during the second week temperatures were well over 100 degrees in the central valleys and southern California. Showers were recorded in northern California and some of the mountain counties but were of little importance in relieving the drought conditions.

The weather during the past week was especially favorable to rice. Although the crop had been retarded in growth to some extent by the cool weather that previously prevailed, reports indicate it is maturing favorably and good yields are expected. Many fields are now being drained and the rice harvest will be at least two weeks earlier than usual. The harvesting of blackeye and small white beans is now well under way. Conditions vary considerably, being fairly good on the irrigated land but poor on the non-irrigated on account of the drought. Red spider injury has been more serious this year than usual. Hop fields are rated as poor, fair and good; conditions being spotted on account of drought and red spider injury. The harvesting of sugar beets is in progress and yields obtained uphold the condition estimates made earlier in the season. Warm weather the past week favored the cotton crop. Slight shedding on account of water shortage is noted in some areas.

Most of the tree fruit crops have been harvested. The cling peach season is rapidly nearing a close and practically all of the freestone peaches have been picked; however many are still in the process of drying. Prunes are being harvested generally throughout the state. Yields are variable as in many localities the trees suffered from drought and red spider injury. Reports indicate that the crop is turning out about as forecasted. The plum crop did not turn out to be quite as heavy as was indicated earlier in the season. Daily shipments of grapes are rapidly increasing as the season has now started in all of the principal districts. The seasonal movement up to August 28 totaled 5,735 cars compared with 4,432 cars shipped to the same date last year. A large part of the raisin grape crop intended for raisins has already been picked and reports from the field indicate that yields are falling short of expectations.

A. E. Everaert returned from Oakland last Monday after spending a few days at the bay region.

The extraordinary amount of traffic passing through Washington during the past week has made business lively not only for the filling stations but for the auto camps at this side of the river. The West Side Auto Camp has been crowded every night for the past two months but was especially busy during the past ten days. The West Sacramento Auto Camp has also been extremely busy to the extent of turning away many tourists who would rest at this side of the river. It is safe to say that an average of 300 cars every hour passes through Washington and at certain hours of the day that number is exceeded especially during the State Fair period. The State Motor Vehicle Department has estimated that at least 900 cars passed through this section of Yolo County every day.

F. L. Maule has purchased the grocery store located in the West Sacramento Auto Camp and is already in charge of operations in the store. The transfer was made on August 28th, leaving the owner of the camp, Joe Pereira, to look after the other affairs around the colony. Maule was a real estate agent in Sacramento until the time he purchased the grocery store and has a brother, L. H. Maule, to help him in the business. They expect to make several additions to the store and also expect to put in a larger and wider stock of supplies for the tourists in the auto camp as well as for residents of Washington in the neighborhood. Pereira's business has kept him so busy that he felt it incumbent on him to either rent the grocery store to some other parties or else devote his entire time to the establishment. This would not do because of the constant stream of tourists who are now depending on the camp for accommodations.

Last Tuesday Judge Barry fined Steve Martinelli $25 for reckless driving after he had been arrested by Constable Buckingham. Steve became obsessed with the idea that he owned Washington as well as West Sacramento and Riverbank and believing all the streets to be his exclusively he zig-zagged up and down the streets as if he were monarch of all he surveyed. Children playing in front of their homes became frightened and informed Constable Buckingham, with the result that Steve was placed in jail for a short while to sober up and then paid his fine of $25 without demur.

For the first time in eleven years Judge Barry, with his wife and some friends is going on a vacation for a period of thirty days. The judge has been on the bench in Washington without a vacation since he was first appointed to take the place of the late Charles Simpson. Last Tuesday the board of supervisors granted him permission to leave the state for a period of thirty days and told him that unless he took a vacation oftener he would likely be fired.

"Mucha" Mathena, John Borzone and J. W. Clark returned last Wednesday evening from their midsummer vacation at Lake Tahoe. After spending three months at the lake they felt themselves thoroughly rested from their labors of last winter and are now about ready to go to work again. Of course at the present time there isn't much work to be had for men of their caliber with the consequence that they are taking life easy for a few more days and casually visiting their friends to renew acquaintances.

Sanford and John Steuben came from Placerville last Tuesday empty-handed although they expected to return with a load of venison. They spent two days in the mountains of El Dorado County but failed to locate a buck although at times they could see across canyons that deer were plentiful on the mountainside.

J. G. Soule is able to be around again after a severe spell of sickness the latter part of last week. Last Tuesday he was taken with severe pains in the lower jaw, which gradually spread to his limbs and practically laid him up. Medical attention relieved him to a great extent but the constant nursing of his good wife seemed to do him the most benefit. Both are able to be around again attending to their several duties.

The old barber shop lately occupied by Jack Reuther is being remodelled by Fred Hauser into two apartments of three rooms each. Accommodations are being placed in each apartment in the way of bath and all modern utilities and Hauser declares that he has not had the least trouble in renting them even before they were finished.

Miss Gyneth Myers and Dorothy VanDeren returned from San Francisco last Tuesday after having spent several days visiting with relatives. This was the first visit either of the young ladies had made to the metropolis but they got along alright and are proud of the fact that they saw the city in their own way without the aid of a guide or a chaperon.

James Baglin and family have moved to Sacramento to make a permanent home in the capital city. They have been residents of Washington for over twenty years and only moved to get better accommodations. They purchased a new home in the Oak Park district.

S. A. Walters and family, who have been renting a portion of the Rickard home for over two years have also moved to Sacramento after purchasing a home in the East Sacramento district.

Ray Peek and family, W. Glasford and family, John Peek, and Fleming Peek left here last Saturday on a camping trip for Chester, Plumas County, where they expect to spend most of their time in fishing and hunting. They will remain fully two weeks.

C. E. Edwards with his wife, mother and mother-in-law, Mrs. E. Single, spent last Sunday in Grass Valley with friends and relatives. They returned Sunday evening.

Percy Hart is sporting a new Essex automobile which he purchased a couple of weeks ago. Percy is laying in his winter supply of wood at the present time and expects to be extremely busy during the rest of the season.

Mrs. E. C. Reinersman has been feeling very poorly during the past few weeks. Yesterday she was somewhat improved but still is not entirely recovered.

N. Bernacchi has disposed of his interest in the Hoffman soft drink place and expects to make his future home in Sacramento.

Mrs. Mary Noyes who was thought to have recovered from a recent illness, last night suffered a relapse and was removed to the home of Mrs. R. E. James in East Sacramento.

E. J. Talbot and family, who have resided in Washington for some time, have now removed to Sacramento to make their home.

Miss Helen Dassonville is spending a few days in San Francisco as the guest of Mrs. Fred Swezy.

Mrs. F. L. White Sr. is confined to her home in Washington by illness.

Miss Jeanette Buckingham, niece of Supervisor H. B. Buckingham and a former resident of Washington, who later removed to Paradise Valley, is now attending the University of Nevada at Reno.

Arthur Collins, undersheriff of San Francisco, is spending a few days visiting with his mother, Mrs. Mary A. Glenn.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Cameron are entertaining as house guests Mrs. A. Metlock, Miss Florence Metlock and Miss Mamie Keenan, all of San Francisco.

After spending the week-end and holiday in Napa as the guests of friends and relatives, Miss Clare Conrad, Mrs. F. L. White Jr., Mrs. A. M. Cameron and Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Jasper returned to Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Jasper have left for their home in Woodland, accompanied by Miss Clare Conrad and Miss Alberta Conrad.

Mrs. Fred Moser and son and daughter, Clarence and Marguerite, have returned after spending the week-end at Lake Tahoe.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Flint and family are spending a short while in Oakland.

Robert Gaskell of Los Angeles is spending a few days in Washington as the guest of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Thorburn and daughter, Lois, of Berkeley, have returned home after visiting with Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Cook for a few days.

Miss Flora Williams has returned from a three weeks' visit in East Sacramento as the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Robert Gibbs.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Brash and daughter, Margaret, of Oakland were week-end visitors in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Eugene have left for Fallon, Nev., accompanied by Miss Amy Hoover and Miss Mildred Hoover of that city, who have been spending a few weeks in Washington visiting with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Speicher.

Howard White and Blair Manchester have returned after spending the week-end and holiday on a pleasure trip to Coloma.

Revival services will be held every evening at 7:30 o'clock for an indefinite period at the Washington Community Church.

Mrs. Celia Hart, who was injured last week by a fall at her home, has recovered from the effects.

The condition of Ellis Barry, who has been confined to his home for a few days by illness, is much improved.

Mrs. Hattie Stewart, who has been confined to her home by illness, is recuperating.

U. S. FIBER PRODUCTS PLANT BEING CONVERTED INTO SUGAR REFINERY IN WEST SACRAMENTO

Several men have been busy during the past ten days dismantling the machinery in the factory formerly occupied by the United States Fiber Products plant in West Sacramento.

Two weeks ago the long drying shed that extended from the factory proper to the warehouse that was burned down last winter, a distance of about three hundred feet, was taken down and last Monday the machinery that was formerly used to make pulp for paper manufacturing and insulating material was being removed from the factory proper.

The presence of workingmen in the plant lead to inquiry on the part of the Independent, for it had been the hope of the people of the district that some day the plant would be started up again to place many workingmen at work.

Inquiry lead to the knowledge that the place will not again be used for paper making or the manufacture of insulating material but that a probability exists that the plant will be used as a part of a great sugar factory which is proposed for the district.

There remains in the hands of the West Sacramento bondholders committee nearly three thousand acres of land, some of which is clear and is being rented to farmers and some of which is still wooded and must be cleared before cultivation.

It has developed that the Spreckels interests want this land for beet growing to the extent of about three thousand acres but that acreage would not be sufficient to warrant the construction of a sugar factory in West Sacramento.

However there are hundreds of acres of the Holland District that are now producing beets and that are immediately contiguous and available for the growth of this product to supply the factory, if it is built, at West Sacramento.

At the present writing hundreds of carloads of beets are being shipped to Alvarado, Salinas and Manteca. It frequently happens that beets are being sent by barge to Oakland or Alameda from the Holland District and there transferred to cars for Alvarado or Salinas. This extra handling is expensive and mitigates not only against the beet grower but the sugar factory owner.

Again there is a vast acreage in the Natomas District available and adaptable for the growing of beets.

It is practically only a stone's throw from the Natomas District to the West Sacramento district, hence the presumption prevails that the West Sacramento district, supplied with water and rail transportation is eminently adaptable as a site for a sugar factory.

It is allowed that to support a factory seven thousand acres of good productive land must be near at hand. Immediately contiguous to the West Sacramento factory site there are over twenty thousand acres of best producing land and logically it follows that the site is a splendid one.

Adaptable land for beet growing produces fifteen tons to the acre and in this locality the saccharine content is higher than in any locality of the state.

An agent of the Spreckels interests has not only been interviewing the West Sacramento Company in this particular but he has also been interviewing some of the large landholders of West Sacramento.

What this agent wants is a pledge from the landowners to plant beets for a number of years, the sugar company guaranteeing to pay a minimum price for beets carrying certain quantities of saccharine.

Or it may be possible that the sugar company may purchase the land in three reclamation districts, West Sacramento, Holland District and Natomas District.

G. W. Peltier, president of the Farmers and Mechanics Bank in Sacramento, is earnestly boosting this proposal and has practically lent his countenance and encouragement to the project. In it he sees the possibility of maintaining a sugar factory in West Sacramento and would go so far as to encourage the proposal with his support.

At the head of the United States Fiber Products Company was J. M. Henderson, Jr., of Sacramento whose connection with Spreckels is too well known for repetition. The products company owned seventeen and one-half acres between the line of the Oakland Antioch and the California State Rice Milling Company's mill. That land is still owned by the Fiber Products Company and subject to Mr. Henderson's disposal.

These things connecting together have prompted the idea that West Sacramento is a logical and a practical site for a sugar factory that may be secured if not this year at least next year.

The Independent is in receipt of information that no deal has yet been made and no papers have been signed in the establishment of a sugar refinery at West Sacramento, but at least there are indications that something in that way may be accomplished.

PROMISE MADE BY S. P. COMPANY TO IMPROVE SIDEWALKS

At the meeting of the Washington Boosters Club last Tuesday evening in the town hall it was reported by a committee consisting of Joe Pereira and P. A. Fitzgerald that the division engineer of the Southern Pacific Company in Sacramento had promised to widen the sidewalk leading from the west end of the Southern Pacific bridge on Third street to the town hall.

The committee had interviewed Division Superintendent Ahern, who referred the matter to the division engineer, Mr. Turner, and on hearing the pleas of the committee, Mr. Turner promised that the sidewalk along this property which is owned by the Southern Pacific Company would not only be widened but would be put in shape for use during the winter months.

Mr. Turner also promised that the sidewalk south of the railroad tracks crossing Anne street would be placed in condition by the railroad company because some time ago that crossing was torn up when the end of the incline was cut out to permit a wider turn at the end of the bridge.

A committee of members of the Boosters Club reported that in an interview with the school trustees the promise was made that not only would a watchman be placed over the public school building at nights during the summer months but that the school trustees deemed it necessary to hold a watchman all the time over the public school building.

It was decided that the club should coincide with the idea of the school trustees in the employment of a night-watchman owing to the fact that in many of the sections of the state public school buildings have been burned through incendiarism with little or no insurance to relieve the taxpayers in the construction of new school buildings.

Owing to the fact that a great many people were in Sacramento attending the state fair the meeting of the club was not largely attended last Tuesday evening.

Alcohol is so plentiful in Reno that bootleggers are using syringes to shoot it through the bung holes of barrels of near beer.

In San Francisco they don't shoot it. They simply serve it.

BRYTE DANCE PLATFORM CLOSED BY SHERIFF AND CONSTABLE

Last Saturday night Sheriff J. W. Monroe and Constable Henry Buckingham attended the public dance being conducted in Bryte by Manuel Barros, a colored man, and a woman who had come with him from Roseville.

Neighbors of the dance place had complained that jackass was being distributed during the dances and that frequently those dances became rough and unruly after the jackass got to working.

To ascertain for themselves the sheriff and constable attended last Saturday night with the result that after an investigation the place was ordered closed by Sheriff Monroe.

The report published in Sacramento and Woodland papers that a woman had attacked Constable Buckingham was without foundation. When the officers discovered a small quantity of liquor they ordered the place closed but no one in the place at that time was under the influence because it was early in the evening.

The place is not an open air dance platform but was a home formerly from which the partitions of the lower portion of the house were removed to provide a large dancing place.

When the order was issued by Sheriff Monroe to close the house as a dancing place protest was entered by some of those present because they had paid for entrance to the place and did not want to be done out of the pleasure of the evening.

Probably there were a hundred persons present at the time the order was issued by the sheriff, but none of them were under the influence of liquor and none of those present assaulted the constable or the sheriff.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial:

Neighborhood pride yes -- but city unity, too

The community group working to make the two northern West Sacramento neighborhoods of Bryte and Broderick a better place to live are looking to create new signs at their borders. The signs, according to one email from the group, would bear the simple message of "Welcome to Bryte" or "Welcome to Broderick."

That sounds pretty good. But there are a couple of reasons it might be a good idea to also acknowledge on these signs that "Bryte" and "Broderick" are parts of the City of West Sacramento.

One reason is that some people in West Sacramento – particularly, it seems, in Southport – are confused about what city they live in. Acknowledging "West Sacramento" – at least in small print — on any neighborhood's sign could help prevent muddying the waters about the city limits. Over 20 years ago, the various neighborhoods voted to become one city. It's been a bit of a struggle (yet unfinished). Let's not do anything that confuses anyone about whether they live in the City of West Sacramento, or just in someplace called "Bryte" or "Southport."

Also, there's a line between taking pride in neighborhood identity and over-promoting it. West Sacramento doesn't need to be further fractured. Its residents should take pride in their area, without denying their links to the city at large. What's needed is neighborhood pride combined with West Sacramento pride. What's not needed is a push towards "us versus them," or towards secessionist feelings in any neighborhood, north or south.

Normally, in placid political times like these, the News-Ledger does not get a lot of calls from angry subscribers canceling their subscriptions. But we got one last week.

In our May 20 edition, the News-Ledger published a couple of poems written by River City High School students for a school contest. They were both admittedly a little bit "edgy" compared to the usual newspaper content. But both had positive messages.

The more controversial poem was a message against teens who choose mindless rebellion over education. The author criticized their anti-social behavior as pointless, disparaging their choices to reject education, sabotage the classroom experience and pursue violence. The poem contained a clearly mocking "cry for violence"; a cry meant to ridicule some students' violent choices.

Edgy, no doubt, for the News-Ledger. But while the editor is sorry to have helped cause offense, he would make the same choice to publish this poem again. It's good to see those RCHS students taking the time to think and to write.

Letters to the Editor

Gang injunction: a hoax

When will one of our local politicians stand up and denounce this gang injunction and the imposition of the gang enhancement law that puts kids in prison for ten years for crimes that used to get you 30 days in juvenile hall? It seems that Mr Reisig is out of control, and not one of our local politicians has said a word. I know some of our local politicians have lived around here all of their lives and know that this gang injunction is a hoax. The others should know if they would do their homework. Why haven't they said anything? Because they don't want to look soft on crime maybe? Got to protect that career you know. Well, just like we got rid of alot of the bozos in Congress the last election, and hopefully alot more to come in the next election, both state and federal, maybe the time has come to clean the slate around here. This includes Reisig, the police chief, city council people, the mayor, and any other public servant with a voice who should be standing up to Reisig. We need to protect our kids from this insane policy and restore respect for our legal system.

All neighborhoods have good kids who get in trouble once in a while, get in fights, get drunk, maybe steal a car, etc. Their lives should not be ruined because they make one mistake. Let's bring this insanity to an end. Vote these guys out.

Global warming: a lie

There are lies, there are damn lies and then there is alleged global warming.

Do you ever wonder why Al Gore Jr. never debates one of the esteemed scientists that debunk alleged global warming? Do you ever wonder why the British Courts have ruled that Al Gore Jr's "An Inconvenient Truth" has a statement that is read before it is shown to British children, because there are so many inaccuracies and distortions? Do you ever wonder why after warnings that hurricanes were going to be terrible every year that hurricane activity was way lower in 2006, 2007 and 2008? It is because alleged global warming is just that alleged!

One "theory" is that we are dumping massive amounts of sulfur dioxides into the atmosphere, yet when Mount Pinatubo erupted in 1988 more pollutants were placed in the atmosphere then in the entire history of man. One side talks about faith, while the other says prove it first. Until it can be proven that global warming is actually occurring, we have to take the scientific position that it is not. If it's occurring, then we have to determine whether it is actually harmful. That requires both science and philosophy.

On September 25, 2006, the Honorable Senator Inhofe, the Chairman of the Environment and Public Works committee debunked much of alleged global warming. Pointing out the mini ice age in the 1300s to 1500s, the grape wine production in Greenland, 1000 years ago, but not today, the media flip flops every 30 or so years, and the hoax of CO2 among other evidence presented.

MIT Atmospheric Physicist and Professor of Meteorology, Richard Lindzen, is one strong critic of alleged global warming. He actually believes with scientific backing, that global temperatures by 2030 will be lower than today. He also wants the debate to continue on alleged global warming because there is no consensus.

Science and Operations Officer for the National Hurricane Center, Christopher Landsea is another strong critic of alleged global warming. His scientific position is that there is not link between hurricane intensity or activity and alleged global warming. The trends of the past three years confirm this scientifically.

Geochemist and French Academy Scientist Claude Allegre is very clear that there is no consensus about alleged global warming and that many of the phenomena illustrated have natural causes, and that there is no basis to say that the "science is settled."

In October 2008, the US recorded 63 record snow falls and 115 record low temperatures. During a time of alleged global warming we should not have record snow falls and record cold temperatures.

On google there are over 153,000 links to debunking alleged global warming. That does not appear to be a consensus.

In short there is no consensus on alleged global warming. Even politicians are skeptics. In 1997 the Kyoto Treaty was signed by Clinton and NOT submitted to Senate. The Senate, then in 1998 took a test vote and it was a consensus. All 95 Senators on record voted against Kyoto.

To state that something is a consensus there must be a consensus. There is much debate about alleged global warming and much debate about the ramifications good ands bad if the temperatures rise. The good can be summed up by the fact that 18,000 years ago, before real global warming, Canada, Northern Europe and the Great Lakes were buried under glaciers and now they are not. The bad can be summed up with certain islands that have shrunk significantly since the ice age ended.

Lastly, if alleged global warming actually exists, and we really need to reduce the output of carbon dioxide, why were Red China and India, the two largest countries, excluded from the protocols? Shouldn't these giant polluters join the world? We can not exempt two countries, that have over 40% of the world's people from a climate protocol and think we can make any difference.

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Thrilla in Manila: Muhammad Ali and Joe Frazier" — The "Thrilla in Manila" was the third and final boxing match between Muhammad Ali and Joe Frazier. The 1975 bout is considered by many to be the greatest fight of the past half century.

It also was the most brutal. By the 13th round, Frazier, who had a cataract in his left eye and whose right eye had been punched closed, stepped into the ring for the 14th round effectively blinded. After a vicious 14th round, Ali had taken so much damage he was begging his trainer to cut off his gloves and end the fight. His trainer said no.

Frazier's trainer, seeing his man was blind, threw in the towel before the 15th-round bell, and Ali won by a TKO before collapsing onto the mat. Ali later said of the bout, "It is the closest to dying I've ever been," and the injuries sustained in the match would forever impact both fighter's health.

This documentary is told from Frazier's perspective and highlights how the racial politics of the era heightened the emotion of the bout. Frazier had been a staunch ally of Ali during the years when he was banned from boxing for opposing the Vietnam War. Frazier had lobbied President Nixon to reinstate Ali, which led to the "Fight of the Century" match between Frazier and Ali.

By the time of the Thrilla in Manila, Ali had, in Frazier's eyes, betrayed their friendship by publicly taunting and humiliating Frazier by calling him a gorilla, Uncle Tom and The White Man's Champion. When Frazier entered the ring for the Thrilla in Manila, he was enraged, focused and wanting revenge against the man who had humiliated him.

"Eddie Murphy: Delirious" 25th Anniversary Edition — Remember when Eddie Murphy was funny? Yeah, me neither, so hooray for this two-disc set being released so we can look back at a time when Eddie could make us all bust a gut. The first disc is the original concert, the one with the outrageous Family Barbecue bit, Mr. T Thinks You Lookin' Good in Them Jeans, the Michael Jackson at the Grammys riff and that legendary red leather outfit. The second disc contains deleted concert footage, an interview with Eddie reminiscing about the concert and a featurette of interviews of comics (Chris Tucker, Katt Williams, Keenen Ivory Wayans and many others) who were inspired by Murphy to become comedians.

The Red Wolf Conspiracy
by Robert V.S. Redick
(Ballantine Books, $26)
Reviewed by Ealish Waddell

They don't make 'em like the Chathrand anymore — because they can't. The ship is so ancient that the secrets of its creation are lost to the centuries. Gigantic and majestic, the Chathrand is a mobile city, a floating palace meant to spark awe and fear at the glory of the Empire of Arqual anywhere it goes. Its latest mission is one of global significance: to deliver a young bride to her promised husband, a prince of the neighboring land of Mzithrin, and seal peace between the warring nations.

But something more sinister is going on in the bowels of the Chathrand, where assassins prowl, stowaways lurk and a decidedly unpeaceful conspiracy is being secretly hatched. Young Pazel, a ship's boy with a tragic history and unsettling psychic abilities, is one of the first to catch on, followed quickly by the bride herself, a smart and feisty chick who wasn't too thrilled about her fate to begin with. Others soon join their alliance, including her gentle-but-deadly guardian, a tribe of tiny mythical warriors, a shape-shifting wizard and one very frightened rat.

As snatches of the plan come together, the real mission of the Chathrand begins to come to light, and it is anything but diplomatic. Everything seems to center around the mystery of the Red Wolf — what is it, where can it be found and what is its connection to an evil that was supposedly destroyed years before?

Prophecy, betrayal, integrity and justice all play a part in this twisty tale, the first in a promised series, and characters good, evil and ambiguous populate the pages. Many common fantasy elements are present — talking animals, wee people, mermaids, wizards — but tweaked in new ways that give the old ideas fresh life. With its authentically salty shipboard setting and well-realized world-building, "The Red Wolf Conspiracy" is a rollicking read that fantasy fans should enjoy.

A Cool Salad for Hot Summer Days

Calypso is probably best known as a type of Caribbean folk song. It's inspired by a combination of musical styles and languages common to Trinidad. Calypso music is rhythmically smooth, and the words are often colorful and sharply critical in a witty way.

This recipe for Calypso Black Bean and Corn Salad draws inspiration from the Caribbean, the easy spirit of the Islands and the music heard there. The salad takes only a few minutes to assemble, and it can be served either cold or at room temperature. Best of all, most of the ingredients can be found in the pantry or the freezer.

This festive salad instantly became one of my all-time favorites when I was challenged by chef Bobby Flay on his Food Network show "Throwdown With Bobby Flay." I decided to serve the Calypso Black Bean and Corn Salad as a side dish with my fiery Jerk Chicken.

The wonderful thing about this combination of black beans, corn and spices is that it perfectly compliments the smokiness of barbequed meats. It's unique and colorful, and it tastes better the longer it sits in the pepper-infused citrus marinade. The judges loved my dishes, and I was declared the winner of the challenge.

While it was wonderful to claim a culinary victory over chef Flay, the real winners were the guests at the barbeque. They got to eat some of the best dishes in Texas! Try this delicious salad, and you'll feel like a winner, too!

CALYPSO CORN AND BLACK BEAN SALAD

1 (10-ounce) package frozen corn kernels, thawed
2 (15-ounce) cans black beans, drained and rinsed
1 large red bell pepper, seeded and diced
1 small fresh jalapeño chili, seeded and minced
1/2 cup firmly packed chopped fresh cilantro
1/4 cup freshly squeezed lime juice
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

Combine the corn, beans, bell pepper, jalapeno, cilantro, lime juice, oil, sugar, salt and pepper in a large bowl. Taste and adjust seasonings. Cover and chill one hour or overnight to combine flavors. Serves 4 to 6.
